Academy Overview

Educational Excellence for Global Living

Students in Salem High School’s International Entertainment and Business Leadership Academy will prepare for the global workforce by completing rigorous courses of study along with two or more focused pathways. Pathway offerings include film production, radio production and management, music production, and global studies with an emphasis on world languages. Along with their pathways, students will have the opportunity to participate in dual enrollment courses with local area colleges and universities and/or work-based learning. Through these experiences, students will prepare for college studies, the global work world, and public service.

International Entertainment and Business Leadership Academy students will participate in Academy workshops featuring guest speakers from industry, business, and the community. These workshops will provide students with the opportunity to enhance their leadership and communication skills, develop business knowledge and abilities, and enhance their cultural understanding and appreciation. Students will graduate ready to be 21st Century leaders in the business, entertainment, and global community.

Entertainment Pathways

Entertainment pathway students will be able to choose an audio-visual and technology concentration, focusing on either film production, radio production, or music production. A hub for the film, TV, and radio industries, Conyers provides students with many opportunities to utilize their unique skills in the entertainment field. Student-centered, hands-on instruction, as well as guest speakers, field trips, and internships, will provide Salem's students with the skills needed to be competitive in the entertainment industries, as well as the business and management background to one day own and operate their own businesses.

Business Pathways

Business students in the International Entertainment and Business Leadership Academy will complete a sequence of courses from one of four business pathways: Financial Services, Web and Digital Design, Entrepreneurship, and/or Business Accounting. In each course, students will learn the skills needed for success in the international business community. Student-centered instruction, as well as guest speakers, job-shadowing, and field trips, will be used extensively in these pathways. As a Microsoft IT Academy school, business students will also complete certification in Microsoft Office. Through their participation in Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA), students will attend conferences and compete with students across the state of Georgia.

Marine Junior ROTC Pathway

Marine Junior ROTC students will focus on personal growth, academic successes, and leadership development. Classroom topics include character development, communication skills, personal responsibility, and public service. MJROTC pathway students participate in drill and color guard activities, representing Salem and RCPS at sporting events and academic awards ceremonies. As students develop their individual knowledge and skills, they become peer leaders within the program, strengthening their leadership skills for the future. Students in the MJROTC pathway serve as role models and leaders both for Salem and in the district as a whole.
